Unit 1 Who we are

1.1 What's your personality?

1 Vocabulary: Describing personality

A Read a woman's descriptions of three people she knows. Then check (✓) three words that describe each person.

1 My friend Anna is always in a good mood. She doesn't get upset about little problems like missing the bus or losing her keys. She spends a lot of time with friends, but we all know that she'll probably be about 30 minutes late because she can't ever find her keys!

☑ cheerful ☐ nervous ☐ easygoing ☐ sociable ☐ reliable

2 Marco is eight years older than me. He's my brother, but sometimes he's more like a parent. He gives me money when I need it for food or car repairs. He gave me a room in his house when I first started school. He even protected me from our neighbor's angry dog when I was little. He's great, but he doesn't always tell me the truth. I mean, he never tells me when he has a problem. He doesn't want me to worry.

☐ brave ☐ generous ☐ honest ☐ selfish ☐ helpful

3 My friend James is the smartest person I know. He reads one or two books a week. I don't see him very often because he's always at home reading or studying. When we get together, we have interesting conversations about science and politics. I like talking with him, but some people don't feel the same way because he always tells them when they say something that's wrong.

☐ easygoing ☐ intelligent ☐ nervous ☐ serious ☐ honest

B Describe a friend or family member. Use the personality words from exercise 1A.

2 Grammar: Information questions

A Put the words in the correct order to write questions. Then match the questions with the answers.

Subject Info about Boston

Hi Erica,

My name is Dita. I live in Mexico City. You work with my sister, Belen, in New York. She gave me your email address. I hope that's OK. I'm writing because I want to go to Boston, Massachusetts, next summer, and I'd like to find out more about it. Belen told me that you were raised in Boston. Can you tell me a little bit about the city?

I'm wondering what the weather is like in Boston in the summer. I'd also like to find out how much money I need. Do you know how much an apartment in the city costs? My friend Marta wants to come, too. She wants to live with me, so we need a two-bedroom apartment.

Marta and I are both into music. Do you know if there are any good places to listen to music? Can you tell me if there are any big concert halls in Boston? What else can we do there?

Hope to hear from you soon.

Dita

The 25th Annual Cross-City 10K Race is happening on May 27 – join the race or volunteer!

Run

The race route will take runners through the whole city. The race starts at the ferry terminal and ends at the soccer field in Miller Park. Sign up for the race online. The deadline to sign up is May 15. Click here to sign up.

Watch

Stand along the race route and cheer the runners on. After the race, stay and enjoy free food and drinks and a concert in the park. Click here to see the concert schedule.

Volunteer

Several of our runners are coming from out of town. A couple of days before the race, we need volunteers to meet them at the airport or the train station and tell them which buses or trains to take to get to their hotels. These volunteers will also give runners race information, schedules, and directions to the race's starting line. On race day, volunteers will stand on the race route and hand out water to all of the runners.

Volunteers should have a lot of energy, enjoy meeting new people, and know how to get around the city. Click here to volunteer.

When I was young, I was afraid of the dark, so I always slept with a small table lamp on. One night, I couldn't sleep. I got out of bed and went to the kitchen to get a glass of water. When I came back into my room, I stepped on something. As I fell onto the floor, the glass of water flew out of my hand, and the light went out. It was so dark, and I was so scared. I was sure that there was a monster in my room and that I had stepped on its foot! I screamed and screamed. My parents came running into the room to see what was wrong. By then I was crying, and I couldn't really talk. My father turned my bedroom light on, and my mother picked me up off the floor and put me into my bed. After I calmed down, I said that a monster turned my lamp off when I stepped on its foot. Then my father bent over and picked something up. It was a stuffed animal! I tripped on it and accidentally unplugged the lamp as I fell down! We all laughed and laughed about it. Then my parents plugged my lamp back in and cleaned all the water off my floor.

1 Listening

A 6.01 Listen for detail Listen to the podcast. Choose the correct answers.

1 What is the podcast about?
a self-driving cars b underwater cars c flying cars

2 What is Teresa designing a car for?
a emergencies b entertainment c to solve traffic problems

3 Does she think everyone will have one of these cars?
a Yes. b No. c She's not sure.

4 When does Teresa think we will have these cars?
a in a few years b in several years c never

B 6.01 Read each line from the podcast. Who said it? Check (✓) Steve or Teresa. Then listen to the podcast again to check your answers.

		Steve	Teresa
1	A lot of sci-fi movies show people driving around in the sky.	☐	☐
2	My goal is to develop flying cars for emergencies.	☐	☐
3	… do you think flying cars will solve our traffic problems?	☐	☐
4	Can you tell us why?	☐	☐
5	Flying ambulances won't have that problem.	☐	☐
6	We still have a lot of work to do …	☐	☐

2 Reading

A Read the comment by a podcast listener, Opinionzzz. Check (✓) the topics that he writes about. Circle the ones that Steve and Teresa already mentioned.

Opinionzzz wrote:

Why are flying cars and flying ambulances a bad idea? Well, first of all, we already have medical helicopters that can move people in an emergency. Helicopters can't get to all places in a busy city, but they can be a good option in many situations.

Second, if everyone is flying cars in the sky, we'll have traffic jams in the air! And imagine a car accident in the air – flying car parts might fall onto people on the ground. People in the flying cars might even fall out!

Third, we already have a lot of air pollution. I think that flying cars would create more of it. The air in big cities would be horrible.

Fourth, cars break down all the time. When your car breaks down, you just pull over to the side of the road. What will you do if your car breaks down in the air? Your car would probably just fall to the ground. That might destroy your car and even hurt someone else … or worse.

I definitely don't think we should have flying cars. Let's find other ways to get ambulances to people more quickly.

☐ flying too fast
☐ traffic in the sky
☐ medical helicopters
☐ cars breaking down
☐ falling out of the sky
☐ too much noise
☐ air pollution
☐ being afraid of flying

3 Writing

A Write your own comment responding to Steve's podcast and Opinionzzz's comment. Decide if you think flying ambulances are a good idea or not. Give reasons and use questions to make points.

Why Do We Binge-watch TV Shows?

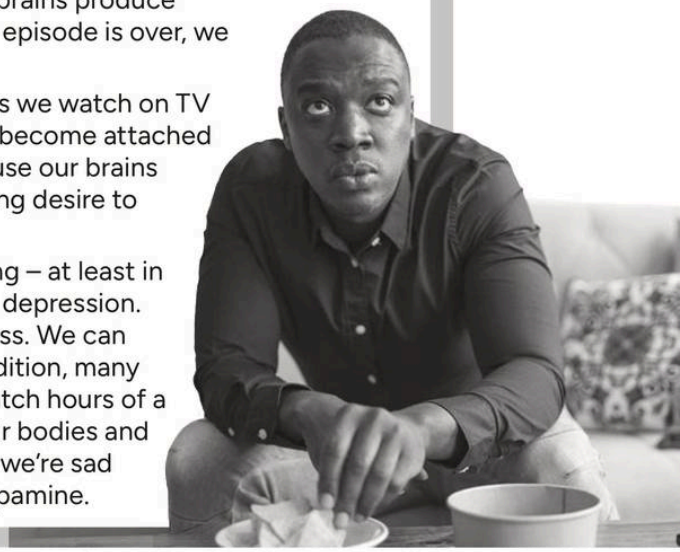
How do you watch shows? Do you watch one episode a week? One a day? Or do you sometimes watch entire seasons in a weekend? If you like watching episode after episode of a series, you're not alone. Binge-watching has become more and more popular in the past decade. But why?

Stress relief When we binge-watch, we escape from our real lives for a few hours. While we're watching, we don't think about our problems or responsibilities. That can help us relieve stress.

Happiness According to experts, when we binge-watch, our brains produce dopamine – a chemical that makes us feel happy. As soon as one episode is over, we start the next one because we want to keep feeling good.

Caring Psychologists say that our brains can experience things we watch on TV almost the same way that they experience real events. We often become attached to characters and really care about what happens to them. Because our brains aren't always good at separating TV from real life, we have a strong desire to keep watching to find out what happens next.

Based on this information, binge-watching seems like a good thing – at least in the short term. However, over time, experts say that it can cause depression. When we finish binge-watching a show, we can feel a sense of loss. We can also feel sad because our brains stop producing dopamine. In addition, many of us binge-watch at home while we sit on a couch. We might watch hours of a show and not move much at all. This lack of exercise is bad for our bodies and our brains. Exercise can improve our moods and reduce stress. If we're sad after a show ends, we can do some exercise to produce more dopamine.



1 When we binge-watch, we can forget about our _____ and _____ .
2 Binge-watching helps us get rid of _____ .
3 Binge-watching makes us feel _____ .
4 When we see something happen in a TV show, our brains think we're experiencing it _____ .

B Do you think it's a good idea to binge-watch shows? Why or why not?

2 Reading

A Read the comment by BusyBee221. Then read the statements and check (✓) the ones that are true.

BusyBee221 wrote:

After I listened to the latest episode of Tips with Tina, I immediately decided to try Andrew's tips for saving time. Like Tina, I'm always losing my keys. I also spend a lot of time looking for my wallet in the morning. So, I put a bowl on the dresser in my bedroom, and I started putting my keys and my wallet in it when I got home every evening. I tried it for a week, and it really made a difference. Before, I used to feel rushed every morning, and I would sometimes get to class late, but now I feel less stressed. I got to class on time every day last week, and I even had time to take a walk through the park on the way.

The second tip was harder to follow, but I did my best. I managed to say "no" to one invitation last week when my friend invited me over to play video games. I felt guilty about it for a while, but I was really glad that I refused the invitation. Instead of playing video games, I finished my paper for my history class. It felt great!

So far, Andrew's tips are working for me. I think they'll keep saving me time in the future.

reply

- ☐ 1 BusyBee221 tried Andrew's tips.

EDISON 3 18 5

I ordered four boxes of your Cookie Bites last week because a friend of mine recommended them to me. They were delivered yesterday, and they're almost all gone! My roommates and I loved them. I had to hide one box in my room so they wouldn't be eaten by my hungry roommates. I bought four different flavors: chocolate chip, peanut butter, double chocolate, and coconut. The chocolate chip and peanut butter were my favorite kinds. Although I love chocolate, the double chocolate ones were a little too rich and sweet for me. I'm sure the coconut cookies were delicious. However, I never got to try one because my roommates ate them all. I'm so excited to try the rest of the flavors!

1 What product is Edison's feedback about?
It's about Cookie Bites.

2 What is his general opinion about the product?

The Helper Experiment

by Thomas Holley

I recently heard that helping others is a good way to achieve happiness. I wondered if this could be true, so I decided to try it. I came up with an experiment: for one month, I would do at least one nice thing for another person every day. This could be anything from holding a door open to taking care of a sick friend.

On the first day, I saw my elderly neighbor carrying a heavy trash bag to the trash can outside. She was really struggling. I went up to her and asked if I could help her. She gratefully gave me the bag, and we started walking back toward our apartment building. When we got to the front door, she thanked me and invited me into her apartment for a cup of tea. We chatted over our tea for a while, and then I went home. I have to say, I felt great! I felt like I did something important that day and made my neighbor's life a little easier.

Over the next few days, I found myself doing more than one nice thing per day. On my day off the first week, I spent almost the whole day looking for people to help. I wanted to figure out exactly why helping people was making me happy, so I did some research. I found out that there are a number of ways that helping people affects us. For example, helping people can increase our self-esteem and confidence. Doing something nice for another person can also give us a sense of purpose. In addition, when we volunteer on a regular basis, we feel a sense of belonging to a group.

During that month, I think I probably did at least a hundred nice things for others. Since then, I've kept up doing at least one helpful thing per day. If I didn't have to work, I would help people all day long! I've even started volunteering at the hospital. I think everyone should try this experiment. It can make us all happier.

1 What point of view does the writer use? first person

2 Why did the writer decide to try the "helper experiment"? _____

Conversation 1

A Hey, you got back yesterday from your trip, right? How did it go?
B Actually, we're still here. All the trains were canceled yesterday. We didn't even find out until we got to the train station.
A [1] _____
B I was at first! We went to complain, but then they explained the situation. The thing is, it was raining really hard, and they canceled the trains because parts of the city were flooded.
A You're kidding! [2] _____
B Yeah, it did. People have lost their homes, their cars, and so much more. It's awful! The damage to the city is pretty bad in some areas.
A [3] _____
B Miguel and I have decided to stay a few extra days and volunteer. These people need all the help they can get.
A I'm so glad you can help, but be careful!

Conversation 2

A How was your weekend? Did you have a good birthday dinner with your friends?
B I did, but I had a real surprise on Friday. I was late to the restaurant because of traffic, and when I got there, no one was there. The huge table I had reserved was empty.
A Oh no! [4] _____
B I guess, I was confused ... [5] _____
Then, I started to feel sad ... until a friend sent me a message to tell me she would be late to the dinner – the dinner on Saturday.
A On Saturday?
B Yes, I got the days confused! I told my friends the dinner was on Saturday, not Friday.
A Seriously? So, what did you do?
B Well, I told my friends. The restaurant was fully booked on Saturday, so one of them offered to have the dinner at his house. Everyone brought something to eat, and it was great!
A [6] _____
After all that, your birthday was a success!

3 She learned that important life lessons are _____ .
4 Rose taught her that we need to take time to _____ .
5 She said that we need friends who we can call _____ .
6 Joe told her that people shouldn't _____ .

2 Reading

A Read the anecdote. Answer the questions.

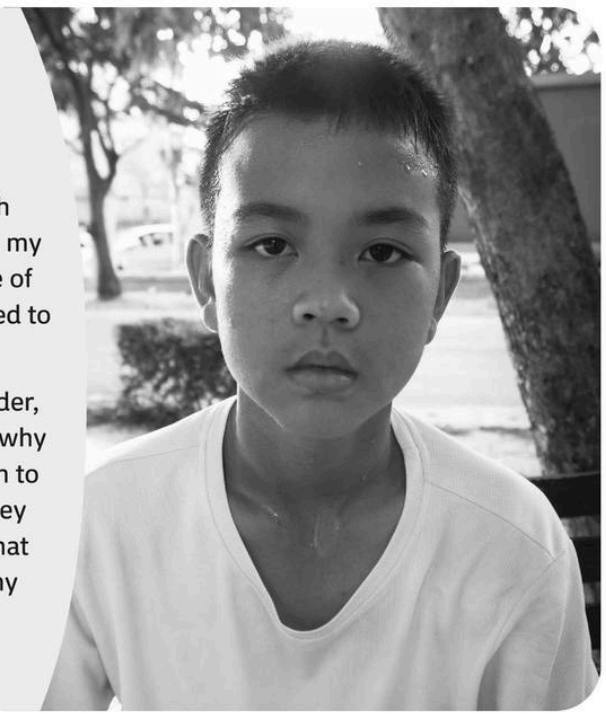
When I was about 12 years old, I was mad at my best friend Andy because another boy told me that Andy had said mean things about me. I was so upset. Andy asked me what was wrong, but I wouldn't tell him. I wouldn't say anything. After a while, Andy was mad at me, too. We stopped talking to each other. I was miserable and I didn't know what to do. I wanted my best friend back, but I was still angry with him. After a couple of weeks, Andy and I both made new friends and we never talked to each other again.

That was a mistake that I won't make again. As I've gotten older, I've learned that it's important to tell your friends and family why you're mad. You might find out that there's actually no reason to be angry. Or you might discover that they had no idea that they had done something you didn't like. Years later, I found out that the other boy had lied to me. I felt bad that I had destroyed my friendship with my best friend just because I didn't tell him what was bothering me.



1 Why was the writer upset with Andy?

2 What did the writer do about his situation with Andy?

3 How did the situation affect his friendship with Andy?

4 What did the writer later learn about the other boy?

5 What life lesson did the writer learn from this situation?

3 Writing

Extra activities

1.5 Time to speak What makes a leader?

A Decide if you would or would not like to be a leader – for example, a leader of your school or of your country.

- Make a list of the good things about being a leader.
- Make a list of the difficult things a leader has to do.
- Decide whether being a leader is mostly good or mostly bad.

B Make an audio recording about the good and bad things about being a leader. End your recording with your decision about whether it is mostly good or mostly bad to be a leader.

C Bring your recording to class and listen to your classmates' recordings. How many of you think being a leader is mostly a good thing? How many of you think it is mostly bad?

2.5 Time to speak Things to bring

A Imagine that someone has an item that you really want, but they won't take money for it. They will only exchange it for something that is very important to you. Write a description of the thing you will exchange.

B Bring your description (and, if possible, your item or a photo of your item) to class. Talk with your classmates, showing your items and sharing your descriptions. Then exchange your description for the description of something that you would like to have.

3.5 Time to speak Secret spots

A Research secret spots in a city that you have visited or would like to visit.

- Search for "secret spots in [city]."
- Write down three secret spots that look interesting to you.
- Take notes on where each spot is and what you can do there.
- Print out a map of the city and mark the spots on your map.
- Find out how to get from each spot to the next.
- Write directions from each spot to the next one.

B Make a video of yourself giving a presentation about the secret spots. In your video:

- Show the spots on your map.
- Describe each spot.
- Explain how to get from one spot to the next.

4.5 Time to speak Microadventures

A Think of an idea for a microadventure that you could go on with friends. Go online and research it.

- Write detailed notes about what the microadventure involves (where it is, how you could get there, what you could do there, how long it would take, and who you could go with).
- Make a list of pros (or benefits) of the microadventure.
- Make a list of cons (or possible problems) of the micraodventure.

B Invite your class on the microadventure. Use your notes to tell them all about it. How many of your classmates would like to go on your microadventure? What are their reasons for going or not going?

5.5 Time to speak Believe it or not ...

A Go online and find a surprising story about something that was lost and then found years later. Or tell a surprising personal lost-and-found story.

- Take notes on the story.
- Write the story in your own words.
- Add one detail to the story that is made up (it didn't really happen).
- Make an audio recording of your story.

B Bring your recording to class. Listen to each other's recordings. Guess which detail of each story is made up.

6.5 Time to speak A 15-minute city

A Go online and research 15-minute cities. Find some examples in different countries. Choose one of them to focus on.

- Take notes on the 15-minute city.
- Describe the key features that make it a 15-minute city.
- Make a poster to illustrate these features and highlight their benefits.

B Bring your poster to class and present the 15-minute city to your classmates. Ask your classmates to discuss its benefits and possible problems. Then ask them to decide if they want to live in the city.

Extra activities

7.5 Time to speak Changing tastes

A Think of a movie, TV show, or song that you liked five to ten years ago, but don't like anymore.

- Take notes on why you used to like it. Think of at least three reasons.
- Take notes on why you don't like it anymore. Think of at least three reasons.

B Make a video of yourself describing your movie, TV show, or song. Explain why you used to like it and why you don't like it now. Share your videos in class. Did anyone have similar reasons why they used to like something? Did anyone have similar reasons why they don't like that thing now?

8.5 Time to speak Building a better life

A Go online and research two time-saving tips that you haven't tried yet.

- Take notes on the tips.
- Try each tip for a couple of days.
- Take notes on your experiences with the tips.

B Make an audio recording. Record yourself explaining the tips and giving a review. Tell whether the tips worked or didn't work for you.

9.5 Time to speak Design your perfect job

A Go online and find an advertisement for a job that sounds fun to you.

- Take notes on the qualifications and requirements. What kind of education and skills do you need to get this job?
- Write a résumé for a person who is qualified for the job.

B Print out the job ad and present the ad and the résumé to the class. See if your classmates can think of other education or skills to add to the résumé.

10.5 Time to speak Shopping psychology

A Think of a product people buy because they want to improve themselves or because they feel fear. Go online and find a photo or a commercial for the product.

- Take notes about the product: What is it? How do people use it?
- How does the photo or commercial show what the product does to improve peoples' lives or make them feel safer? Take notes.

B Show the photo or commercial for your product to your class. Describe what the product is. Explain how the photo or commercial convinces people to buy it. Do your classmates think the product can really improve peoples' lives or help them feel less fear?

11.5 Time to speak Success stories

A Think of someone who became successful after appearing on a TV competition. You can find ideas on the Internet.

- Take notes on the person's life before their success: Where did they live? What did they do? How were they trying to be successful? Why were they having trouble?
- Take notes on the TV competition. What kind of competition was it? What were the rules? What did the winner receive?
- Write a short summary of the person's life and how success changed it.

B Present your summary to your class. If possible, show a short video clip of the person from their TV competition.

12.5 Time to speak Skillful fun

A Think of something you had a difficult time learning when you were a child. For example, you might have had trouble figuring out how to tie your shoes, understanding the rules of soccer, or learning how to play an instrument.

- Take notes on the situation: What were you learning? Why was it difficult? How did you feel about the situation?
- Take notes on how the situation ended: Did you keep trying or did you give up? Why? What did you learn?
- Make a video of yourself describing your experience.

B Share your video with your class. Explain why you think this was or was not a valuable experience for you. If possible, demonstrate the skill to the class.
