1.4 Flip the interview

1 Reading

A Read the article. Then check (✓) the best title.

1 Preparing for an interview? ☐
2 Getting the job you want! ☐
3 Dress for success! ☐

After sending out a lot of applications, you've finally gotten an interview. Now you're busy preparing for it. You've researched the company and thought about the questions you want to ask and the questions they might ask you.

What else is there? What you're going to wear, of course. The way you look is very important. At the end of the interview, you want people to be talking about your skills and experience, not your appearance.

What should you wear? Suits and ties for guys, and dresses for women? That's not always necessary. It depends on the type of job you're interviewing for.

Is it a job in the tech industry? You might not need a suit or a dress, but that doesn't mean you can go in a T-shirt and jeans. You need to look like you're going to work, not out for the night with friends. So, guys, put on a nice shirt and formal pants. And, women, a nice sweater or blouse with a skirt or pants will be fine.

If you're interviewing for a finance job, you need to wear what people in the business world wear. That means a suit and tie for men and dresses or suits for women.

Dress for the job you want. Make sure your clothes are clean and ironed. Avoid wearing strong perfume, and don't wear too much makeup or jewelry. Strong scents can bother people, and too much makeup can look unprofessional. Lastly, choose shoes that are as formal as your clothes are.

Remember: If people are talking about your appearance after the interview, you probably won't hear from them again. So dress right and look good. Your career may depend on it.

B Read for gist Complete the statements. Use the phrases in the box.

goes to a lot of job interviews	has interviewed people	buy clothes
is going to go to a job interview	get a job	interview people

1 The person who wrote the article is someone who _____.
2 The person who reads the article is someone who _____.
3 The purpose of the article is to help someone _____.

2 Listening

A 1.01 Listen to the conversation. Answer the questions.

1 When is the man's interview? _____
2 Where has he applied for a job? _____
3 What should he wear? _____
4 What's the problem? _____

3 Writing

A Read the comments in response to the article in exercise 1A. Underline the sentence that shows agreement. Circle the sentence that shows disagreement. Put a box around the sentences that show appreciation.

Comments

1 Thanks for the tips. They're really useful, especially since I'm a recent graduate and I'm looking for a job. I'll pay attention to what to wear when I have my interviews.

2 I'm sorry, but I don't think you're right about not wearing perfume. I sweat when I wear a suit, so I think perfume helps.

3 I enjoyed your post. I completely agree that people should dress appropriately for the job. A suit is not always necessary, but you must look good.

B Write two comments in response to the article in exercise 1A. In one comment, show appreciation and agreement. In the second comment, show disagreement. Which comment reflects your true opinion?

Check and review

2.4 Cool food

1 Listening

A 2.01 Listen for gist Listen to a conversation between a man and a woman. Where do they decide to have lunch? Why?

B 2.01 Listen again. Read the statements. Write T (true) or F (false). Correct the statements that are false.

1 The woman is on a gluten-free diet because she wants to lose weight. _____

2 The woman has avoided eating things with gluten for the past six months. _____

3 The woman's family is also on a gluten-free diet. _____

4 The man and the woman are definitely going to lunch at Anna's. _____

2 Reading

A Read about the results of a survey about sustainable diets. Circle the questions that the survey asked. Answer the questions you circle.

Sustainable diets seem all the rage nowadays. You can see sustainably caught fish in supermarkets and restaurants. Influencers' opinions about which foods can be sustainably produced and which are terrible for the environment are all over social media. But what do people really know about sustainable foods? Our survey results have some surprises.

A majority of the people who responded said that sustainably produced foods are hard to find. About 22% said they know which foods are sustainable and which are not.

A quarter of the people in the survey thought that sustainable diets are less balanced than the American average diet. The truth is just the opposite.

More than a third of the people interviewed thought that sustainable foods are more expensive. However, there is no research that proves this to be true. In fact, studies have shown that sustainable eating is cheaper and can reduce food costs.

1 Are sustainably produced foods harder to find?

2 Do you know which foods are sustainable and which are not?

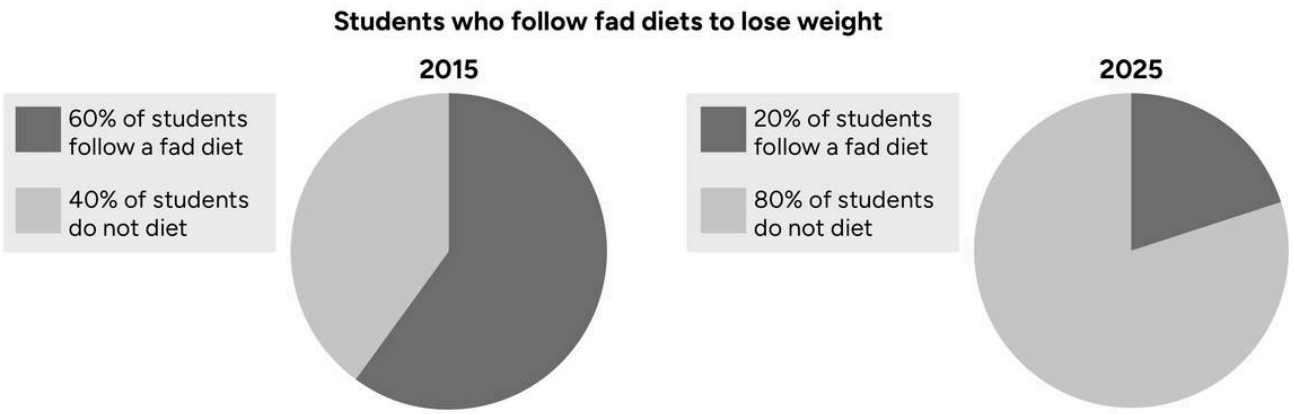
3 Does sustainable food have less flavor?

4 Are sustainable diets less balanced than the average American diet?

5 Are sustainable foods more expensive?

3 Writing

A Look at the charts from a college survey on diet fads. What trends do they show?



B Write a short report about the survey results. You can use the phrases below. Make sure you include numbers from the chart.

A Read the product review. Underline the sentence that shows the reviewer's feelings. Circle the positive and negative features of the product. Put a box around the sentence that gives a recommendation.

Product review

I highly recommend EarthSaver reusable food storage bags. I recently bought the gallon size. They are great for storing leftovers. With these bags you can reduce food waste and use less plastic at the same time. They're easy to clean, too: you can clean them in the dishwasher. My only complaint is that they don't come in very many sizes. The only choices are large and small. Maybe they will come out with a medium size soon. I'd definitely buy these bags again.

B Think of a product you have bought recently. Write a short review of the product.

Mateo What are you doing?

Luna Just reading one of those online gossip sites.

Mateo Why do you read that trash?

Luna Now just a second, there's a lot of really good celebrity news here.

Mateo As I see it, it's mostly just lies. Hardly any of that stuff is true.

Luna That's not true at all. When Taylor Swift got a new boyfriend, where do you think I read about it? On this site. That wasn't made up, was it?

Mateo OK, that's true, but it's still just gossip. It's not news – it doesn't have any effect on your life.

Luna You have it all wrong. I don't read this site for news. I read it to be entertained. Not every news site has to be serious.

Mateo It's not so much that I think all news has to be serious, it's just that I think the stories on this site are so dumb. I don't even find them entertaining.

Luna Well, I couldn't disagree more. Now, if you don't mind, I'm going to finish reading this article.

Lululemon Athletica is an example of an international success story. The brand has become so popular that people don't even realize that it started as a small design and yoga studio in Vancouver, Canada.

The founder, Chip Wilson, got the idea for Lululemon when he began doing yoga. He saw some people practicing yoga in baggy pants and others wearing leggings that ballet dancers wear. He had the idea to create a new kind of stretchy legging specifically for yoga.

Today Lululemon is a Canadian-American multinational athletic clothing retailer with more than 700 stores around the world. It also sells online. It has expanded to sell other athletic wear, lifestyle clothing, accessories and personal care products. With the explosion of athletic wear worn in everyday life, it has become a lifestyle icon.

3 Writing

A Read the social media comment. Underline the five words and phrases that mean "because (of)" and "so."

Strong local brands can become global ones. As a result, they can export the best of our culture while strengthening our economy. Due to the fact that global brands dominate everywhere, local businesses are at risk. People lose jobs. As they no longer have jobs, they spend less. Consequently, other businesses feel the impact. Our government should help local brands expand to compete globally. Thanks to the internet, even small businesses can reach international markets quickly. Let's support local brands that have the potential to go global.

Arturo	_____
Credit card worker	Of course, sir. I'll transfer you right now.
Manager	Hello, sir. How can I help you?
Arturo	Well, I'm trying to get some charges removed from my credit card account. I lost my card yesterday, and I guess someone else found it and used it.
Manager	I'm sorry to hear that. But since you didn't report your card as lost yesterday, I can't totally remove the charges. But I can reduce them by 50%.
Arturo	_____

5.4 The perfect apology?

1 Reading

A Read the blog post about apologies. Does the writer think apologies matter a little or a lot? How do you know?

Home Blog About Search

Apologies

Why do we find it so hard to apologize? We teach children from a very young age to say, "I'm sorry." But as adults, we can find it hard to say.

Imagine a situation which deserves an apology: It's late at night. You're very angry with someone. You post something terrible about that person. What happens next?

That depends. Do you wake up in the morning and realize you've done something awful? Do you feel guilty? If you do, you apologize right away. You hope you'll hear, "It's OK. Don't worry about it." You need that forgiveness so that you can feel less guilty.

But what about if you wake up and can't admit you've done anything wrong? What if it's very hard for you ever to admit you've done something wrong? You're less angry now, and maybe you know that sending the message was the wrong thing to do. But if you say you're sorry, you'll be admitting a flaw. People will know you did something wrong and you're not perfect. They'll think you're weak when you want them to think you're strong.

You know what? Stop worrying about what others think. Think about what you think of yourself. When you take responsibility and express true remorse, you'll grow as an individual. Feeling sorry for what you have done is a good thing. You won't be the weak person you were in the middle of the night. You'll be a strong person who can recognize your mistakes.

B Understanding meaning from context Match the words from the reading (1–4) with their meaning (a–d). Then underline the words in the text that helped you guess the meaning.

1	forgiveness _____	a	the feeling that you are sorry for something bad you have done
2	flaw _____	b	admit that something that is often unpleasant is true
3	remorse _____	c	something about us that shows we are not perfect
4	recognize _____	d	no longer being angry at someone who has done something bad to you

Don't stay here! The receptionist is the worst. I booked connecting rooms, but he tried to put my kids in a room far away from mine. When I refused to take the rooms, he wouldn't give me a refund for my deposit! And of course I still had to pay for another hotel.

Hotel_Manager His behavior
Please accept our apologies for the way the receptionist treated you. The way the receptionist treated you was unacceptable. The manager has spoken to him, and we can assure you it will not happen again. We hope you will contact us so that we can refund your deposit and additionally give you a free night's stay at one of our hotels. We would really like to give you a free night's stay because of what happened. We are truly sorry.

1 What guerilla gardening is ☐
2 Why she started guerilla gardening ☐
3 The places she has done guerilla gardening ☐
4 Other countries where guerilla gardening happens ☐
5 Some of the problems with guerilla gardening ☐

B 6.01 Listen for detail Listen again. Write T (true) or F (false).

1 Greg and Angela both do guerrilla gardening. F
2 People do guerrilla gardening to improve public spaces. _____
3 City governments help with guerrilla gardening projects. _____
4 People can send donations if they want to support guerrilla gardening. _____
5 Guerrilla gardening groups exist only in North America. _____
6 Businesses are helping guerilla gardening groups. _____

2 Reading

A Read about more reasons for guerilla gardening. Circle the correct answers.

The modern guerilla gardening movement has more goals than just making urban spaces beautiful, and it uses a variety of tactics. Many guerilla gardeners focus on sustainability. They plant seeds throughout neglected spaces in their neighborhoods, even in very small patches of ground. They believe gardeners should plant native plants that are well-adapted to the local climate. These plants have a better chance of surviving through periods of bad weather or very little rain. Some guerilla gardeners also focus on plants that are good for pollinators, like butterflies and bees, to help their populations grow. Others' tactics include building balls of seeds and compost and throwing them into hard-to-reach places. This method of spreading seeds could contribute to biodiversity by increasing the variety of plant species growing in a city. According to these gardeners, we should work toward increased biodiversity, more native plants, and healthier pollinator populations.

1 Guerrilla gardeners work on areas that are being cared for / neglected.
2 Native plants require more / less care than non-native plants.
3 Guerilla gardeners need / don't need large plots of land.
4 Guerilla gardeners want to attract more / fewer bees to urban environments.
5 Seed balls are one way of distributing seeds over small / inaccessible patches of land.
6 People participating in guerrilla gardening think urban development / sustainability is very important.

3 Writing

A Read the report. Find the quotations and circle the phrases that are used to introduce them. Then underline the verbs that are used in the phrases.

The city has a lot of empty space that could be used for guerrilla gardening. A recent report by Our Community Together has made a list of the possible places. One of the leaders of the group claimed that "many parts of the city are ugly because nobody takes care of them. Using those spaces to grow plants will make the city more beautiful."

When asked for comment, one resident said, "I think this is an excellent idea. We could start with the Greenwood section of town. Right now it is full of trash. It should be cleaned up."

However, not everybody agrees. One person in city government pointed out that "the city has a lot of needs. The empty space could be used for childcare centers and libraries."

It is true that cities have many needs, but we must accept that having beautiful spaces is one of those needs.

B Think of an empty space in your town that guerrilla gardening could improve. Write a report about the space. Write about where it is, how big it is, what the space looks like right now, and how it could be changed. Include at least one quotation. You can make up the quotation.

Ji-yoo He looks fine in it, it's not that. I mean, his hair never looks great, but [1]_____, the new profile photo. You know he and Seo-yun just split up yesterday, right?

Ha-rin Of course. I talked to her about it for hours. She was like, "It was so sudden. I had no idea he was upset about anything." And I was like, "He's the worst."

Ji-yoo I agree, he was never good for her. Wait, [2]_____?

Ji-yoo Right. So, [3]_____, it turns out he already has a new girlfriend. His new profile photo is a picture of them together.

Ha-rin You're kidding!

Ji-yoo Look. It's right here. Looks like he posted another meme, too. How does this guy have the time to make so many memes? He posts them constantly. They're not even that funny.

Ha-rin But about the new girlfriend.

Ji-yoo Right, sorry. [4]_____. I don't recognize her, do you?

Ha-rin Let me see. Oh, I think I do know her. The funny thing is, she works with Seo-yun.

Ji-yoo Really? That's terrible.

7.4 The emoji code

1 Reading

A Read for main ideas Read the article. Underline the sentences that express the writer's main idea.

😂 or 💀? When is an emoji not just an emoji? Well, it might depend on how old you are. Surveys indicate that different generations use emojis differently. In some cases, they might have different favorites for a particular feeling, and in others, they might think an emoji means something different. This can complicate things when we communicate with our favorite tiny faces.

That's funny. To indicate that they think something is funny, the older generation, Baby Boomers, might type out "lol." Their children, Gen X and Millennials, will probably use 😂. The younger generation, Gen Z, might use 💀. If your boss doesn't know what 💀 means, she won't think your reply to her joke is very funny!

Tell us how you really feel. Surveys indicate that your age might also affect your reasons for using emojis. While Boomers are more likely to use emojis to give a literal meaning, Millennials are more likely to use them to emphasize the emotional tone of a message. Which message are you more likely to send: 🍺 at 2:00, or I think the baby's waking up 😬? If the first message is you, you're using the emoji 🍺 to mean drinking coffee: you're using it literally. If the second message is you, you're using 😬 to express the emotional tone of your message.

Take a look at your own texting habits. How often do you use emojis, and why? What do they mean to you? And maybe be patient with the people you exchange messages with. You might be able to use the same 😀 in every language, but they might not mean the same thing.

B Read for opinions Read the article again. Circle the correct words to complete the statements.

1 The writer says that people in different age groups can easily understand / misunderstand each other when using emojis.

2 The writer believes that Baby Boomers, Gen X, and Millennials use / don't use the same emoji to respond to funny things.

3 The writer thinks people should / shouldn't always feel that they know what an emoji means.

2 Listening

A Read the text. Check (✓) the benefits the writer mentions.

The benefits of turning off notifications on your phone

A recent study has shown that young people get over 200 phone notifications a day, on average. That is a shocking number, and it can't be good for us. Here are three ways turning off notifications on your phone can help:

1. Notifications interrupt our focus, making it harder to complete important tasks. Studies show that even a brief interruption can take several minutes to recover from. Turning off notifications helps us stay focused and get more done in less time.
2. Being free from constant alerts allows people to spend more quality time with others. Instead of checking their phones every few minutes, they can focus on conversations and strengthen relationships with family, friends, and coworkers.
3. Turning off notifications reduces stress. Constant pings create a sense of urgency, even when there's no real need to respond right away. Without the pressure to check every alert, you'll feel calmer and more in control of your time.

5 Better relationships ☐

3 Writing

A Read the comments that listeners left on the podcast web page. Look at the underlined phrases. Then choose the correct answer.

Comments

1 This week's podcast was really interesting. To be honest, I hadn't thought a lot about how often I use my phone. As you said, it's strange that my friends and I get together and then spend so much of the time looking at our phones. I have a question about where to go for digital detox. You point out that it is a good idea to go to a place where everybody is trying to do a digital detox. Does it matter if the people are friends or strangers? I mean, if a friend of mine wants to do a digital detox, could we go together or would that be a bad idea? I look forward to hearing your reply!

2 I really enjoyed this week's podcast. There was one thing in particular that interested me. I never knew there were places that focus on technology-free experiences. I was wondering if you could give me the names of two or three places like that.

These people use the underlined phrases to:

A give an opinion about what he or she heard in the podcast.

B refer to a statement or opinion he or she heard in the podcast.

B Write a comment about the conversation you heard in exercise 1A. Use phrases that reference the speakers' statements or opinions.

9.4 The story of the ramp

1 Reading

A Read the article. Why are some parks modifying their hiking trails?

Accessible trails

For people who use wheelchairs, traditional trails can pose significant challenges. Uneven paths, steep slopes, and lack of proper facilities can make exploring nature difficult, if not impossible.

Hiking trails usually wind through forests or up mountains. Hiking is a wonderful experience for many. But for people who use wheelchairs or need other walking assistance aids, trails can be impossible or dangerous. They are uneven, sometimes have obstacles like rocks or tree roots, and can have steep inclines. Fortunately, some parks are making modifications to their trails so everyone can enjoy them.

Take, for example, the changes made to a popular nature reservation north of Boston, Massachusetts. The park added a wheelchair accessible trail paved with stone dust and wooden decking. These smooth surfaces make it possible for people in wheelchairs to move easily along the entire quarter-mile trail, whether on their own or with assistance. The trails also feature gradual inclines instead of steep hills, allowing for a safer experience.

The Charles W. Ward Reservation didn't stop at just building an accessible trail. They also installed an accessible viewing platform overlooking a beautiful body of water. The platform is spacious enough for wheelchairs to maneuver, ensuring great views for all visitors. Benches and rest areas have been added along the trail as well, providing shaded spots for people to take breaks.

It takes time and resources to create accessible trails, but the benefits are enormous. These modifications promote inclusion, offering access to individuals who may have felt excluded before. By making these changes, parks are creating spaces where everyone can enjoy nature for years to come.

B Recall key information Look at the questions. Can you remember the information? Then check your answers in the article.

1 Where is the Ward Reservation located?
2 What materials did the Ward Reservation use to pave their accessible trail?
3 How long is the Ward Reservation's accessible trail?
4 What feature allows wheelchair users to enjoy the scenery at Ward Reservation?

2 Listening

A 9.01 Listen to part of a talk show. Check (✓) the topic the people discuss. Do you agree with Vince or with Carla? Why?

if people ever have trouble with their monkey helpers ☐
if monkey helpers get enough training ☐ if it is dangerous to have monkeys in people's home ☐
if it is right to use monkeys to help people ☐

3 Writing

A Read the response to exercise 2A and circle the words that show the writer's attitude.

> I have to say that I completely agree with Carla here. It's obviously important to help the disabled be as independent as possible, but we're forcing these monkeys to lead unnatural lives. Sadly, this is the case with many service animals. Frankly, I think it's very unfair to the animals.

B Do you agree or disagree with the use of service animals to help the disabled? Why? Use adverbs to show your attitude.

2 Reading

A Read the story. What did Olivia learn about living without the things she had loved before?

When Olivia Stanton lost her job, she seemed to have lost everything. First it was her apartment and all the things she couldn't take when she moved in with her sister. There was her piano, her furniture, and the books she loved. The only thing she kept with her the whole time was her laptop and her phone. Without them, she wouldn't have been able to look for a job or stay in touch with friends.

For the first few months, Olivia found it very hard to live without all of her things. But as time went on, she learned she actually enjoyed life more with less stuff. She started looking for other things she could live without. She got rid of her car and started walking more or taking the bus. She gave up her gym membership and started running in the park instead.

She also started a blog about her new stuff-free lifestyle. From that blog, she got an offer to write a book and a $25,000 advance. With the $25,000, Olivia has been able to re-establish her life. She moved out of her sister's house and got a new apartment – a smaller one that fits with her new lifestyle. She has no desire to get back all the things she had before. Aside from the laptop, she has found that the only things she can't live without are her friends and the opportunities she found online.

B Circle the correct answers.

1 Olivia moved out of her apartment after / before she lost her job.

2 Olivia got rid of most of her things when she moved to her sister's / because she needed the money.

3 Olivia found that without all of her things life got better / worse.

4 Olivia was able to get a new apartment because she got a new job / an offer to write a book.

3 Writing

A Read the post from Olivia's blog. Circle the words that show contrast and underline the words that show similarity.

When I think about my old lifestyle, it really couldn't be more different from how I live now. My life was full of things. I mean, I owned a lot of stuff, but the things I owned didn't really make me happy. I had a nice car, but I was always worried it would get scratched or dented whenever I drove somewhere. Similarly, I had a lot of really nice clothes, but I worked so much to afford them that I never had time to wear the outfits I liked so much. Now, on the other hand, I have a lot fewer things. But the things I do own are things I truly enjoy, and I also have time to actually enjoy them now.

B Write a comment about what is and is not important in your life. Use the words from exercise 3A to help you.

11.4 Driverless cars? No, thanks!

1 Reading

A Read the article. Is the writer for or against driverless cars?

People rarely like change. They find it frightening. Technology introduces something new, and people say they don't want it or need it.

How do you feel about riding in an elevator? You are probably comfortable. Can you imagine people ever being against an elevator? That is exactly what happened when elevators first appeared. At first, it was someone's job to operate the elevator. People on the elevator just had to get used to going up and down. But when elevators became automatic, people did not like the change at all. There was no human in control. People were scared to let a machine do everything.

So what happened? People got used to elevators. A soft voice gave instructions. There was relaxing music to calm the riders. Now it has been more than 150 years since the invention of the elevator, and people are against another invention: the driverless car. I hear my friends saying things like, "How will I be in control? The car will do anything it wants!"

But driverless cars might turn out to be safer than cars driven by human beings. People sometimes fall asleep at the wheel. They get distracted by their phones or by other passengers. And some people are just not very good drivers. With a driverless car, all of these problems disappear.

In the end, I predict the driverless car will become just like the elevator. People will be just as comfortable in a driverless car as they are in an elevator that is moving them from the first to the twenty-first floor.

B Identifying arguments Read the article again. Check (✓) the arguments the writer uses to support her opinion.

1 New technology is frightening. ☐
2 People did not like elevators, but eventually got used to them. ☐
3 Driverless cars are unsafe for small children and the elderly. ☐
3 People are already unsafe drivers, and driverless cars will be safer. ☐
4 Driverless cars will be much more comfortable than driving ourselves. ☐

2 Listening

A 11.01 Listen to the conversation. Write T (true) or F (false).

1 The woman wants a driverless car. _____
2 The man will never want a driverless car. _____
3 The man likes to drive. _____
4 The woman doesn't think driverless cars are safer. _____

3 Writing

A Read the comment in response to the article. Circle the transition phrase that starts an opinion. Underline the transition phrases that add to the opinion. Draw a box around the transition phrase that ends the opinion.

I'm not a car lover. I drive only because I have to. That doesn't mean I love the idea of driverless cars.

First of all, driverless cars are really just computers on wheels. Computers are hacked all the time. What will prevent a hacker somewhere in the world from getting control of my car? More importantly, what will stop other people from making my car do dangerous things? It's also important to remember that driverless cars can make mistakes. They have been involved in traffic accidents. Additionally, if driverless cars make driving long distances too easy, there might be more cars on the road. That would be bad for the environment. Finally, think of all the people who will lose their jobs if drivers are no longer needed. What will happen to them?

B Write a response to the article in exercise 1A. Give your opinion about driverless cars. Use the correct transition phrases.

12.3 That rings a bell

1 Functional language: Prompting a response and recalling a memory

A Correct five mistakes in the conversation.

Asel I love this picture.

Yusuf Where was that taken?

Asel Don't ~~say to~~ tell me you don't remember the high school picnic.

Yusuf Which picnic?

Asel The picnic when it started to rain.

Yusuf Oh yeah. That rings. We all ran under a tree. That was really dumb.

Asel Well, are you remembering the time it started to rain at the soccer game?

Yusuf No. I didn't recall rain at a soccer game. Are you sure I was there?

Asel Absolutely. You were the only one who had an umbrella. We all tried to get under it.

Yusuf Yeah. It all comes back to me now. That was funny!

2 Real-world strategy: Sharing experiences

A Complete the conversation. Use the phrases in the box.

had a similar experience	of a story	that ever happened	that's like the time

Lucia Once I was on a boat. I took off my bracelet and it fell in the lake. That was the end of that bracelet! Has [1] _____ to you?

Renata Well, I haven't lost anything in a lake, but that reminds me [2] _____. [3] _____ that I lost my sunglasses. I'd put them on the top of the car. I started driving. Then I realized I wasn't wearing them. When I got out of the car, they weren't there anymore.

Diego You know, I [4] _____ once, but in my case I had left my house keys on top of the car. When I got home, I had to break the window to get into the house.

3 Functional language and Real-world strategy

A Read the stories. Then complete the conversation. Use the facts in the stories and your own ideas.

Amanda and Pedro took a bike trip with other friends a few years ago. One day they were in a village. A dog ran across the road right in front of Amanda. She tried to avoid hitting the dog and fell off the bike. She couldn't get up because she was in a lot of pain. Some villagers came to help her. One of them took her to the local hospital. Her friends rode their bikes there. It was a very small hospital. It turned out she had broken her ankle and couldn't continue on the bike trip.

Manuel once fell off a horse when he was on vacation. He'd been riding the horse when something scared it. The horse threw Manuel off and ran away. At first, Manuel's shoulder hurt, but he was OK. He was able to walk and found the horse about a mile down the road.

Amanda Do you remember that time I broke my ankle on the bike trip?

Pedro That trip's a bit vague for me. _____

Amanda Don't tell me you don't remember, Pedro. _____

Pedro Oh yeah, that rings a bell. _____

Amanda _____

Pedro Yeah, it's all coming back to me now. _____

_____ Has that ever happened to you, Manuel?

Manuel That reminds me of a story, but not with a bike. That's like the time that _____

Pedro You know, I had a similar experience once with a horse. _____

12.4 Man's best friend?

1 Listening

A 12.01 Listen to the conversation. Answer the questions.

1 Who are Lily and Chelsea?

2 What does the woman dislike about Dan's dog?

3 According to Dan, how does the dog show happiness?

4 According to Vic, what does Dan do that is dangerous?

B 12.01 Listen for examples Listen again. Put the words and phrases from the conversation in the order that you hear them. Then check (✓) whether they are transitions to change from one topic to another or examples to support an argument.

		Transition	Example
____	The thing is	☐	☐
____	like (jumping)	☐	☐
____	In fact	☐	☐
____	I mean ... just think about	☐	☐
____	For instance	☐	☐
1	Actually	☑	☐

2 Reading

A Read advice for training a dog to be child friendly. Then choose the best title for each piece of advice.

Dog training Reviews | Blog | Contact us

[1] To make your dog safe around children, begin with simple commands like "sit," "stay," and "leave it." These are the foundation for controlling your dog's behavior in new or exciting situations. Practice in a quiet space and gradually add distractions, like toys or sounds, to help your dog learn to focus.

[2] When your dog stays calm near children, offer praise or a small treat. Dogs quickly learn to associate calmness with rewards. Be consistent – reward the behavior you want every time. This will help your dog understand that being relaxed around children is a good thing.

[3] Help your dog understand how to behave gently. For example, train the dog to sit before meeting a child or to wait for permission to go up to a child. Always watch interactions closely and look for signs of stress in your dog, like barking or pacing. If your dog seems uncomfortable, calmly redirect its attention with a toy or command.

a Make your dog want to come when you call

b Teach boundaries and gentleness

c Reward calm behavior

d Start with basic training

e Train your dog not to touch dangerous things

f Give consequences for bad behavior

3 Writing

A Read a summary of an opinion about dog training classes. Underline contrasting ideas. Circle the words that link them.

The speaker argued that dog training classes should not be required. She claimed that many dogs still misbehave despite having had training. She argued that some types of dogs are just naturally more obedient, and that other types of dogs naturally resist training. Personally, I disagree. While it is true that some dogs are more naturally obedient, all dogs benefit from training, and there's not a dog that can't be trained with enough work.

B 12.01 Listen again. Take notes on Vic's and Dan's arguments. Write a summary contrasting their opinions. Mention the points that you agree and disagree with. Conclude your summary with a general opinion.
